Parisgrafs LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began
he did it with all his heart and prospered."

WILL L. Dulaney thinks, and rightly so, that Paris should do more to show appreciation of what our Paris industries mean to us. To have something definite he proposed a Manufacturers Exhibit, to last for about a week and it now appears that this will be done.

Mr. Dulaney's industrial division of the Lamar County Chamber of Commerce has also made a survey showing available sites in Paris for new industries and proposes to assemble information to show what Paris has to offer those who would establish plants here. Furthermore his committee feels that if this survey does not show sufficient advantages that we should at once set about to make the necessary changes and improvements to make Paris a more desirable location for new industries.

This is a worthwhile work and one that is needed. It is one in which all the people should be interested for no one committee, however effective it may be, can do the work alone.

ANOTHER proposal of great interest coming from the civic division of the Lamar County Chamber of Commerce is seen in the report of the chairman, Mrs. S. B. M. Long. She suggests an extensive campaign (immediately) against mosquitoes, an adequate garbage disposal system for Paris and a number of other constructive works.

The civic committee wants to see a road, redoubt and other native shrubs planted along highway 24, all the way from Paris to Red river. A very practical idea and one that can and should be carried out.

This committee would also like to see the West line of the free parking square in front of the hall graded; keep all alleys between business buildings clean; keep dump piles from vacant lots; beautify Wade park; beautify the county property around Lamar hospital and to constantly keep in mind the slogan "A Clean, Beautiful Paris."

THERE is no question about the need of work to be done in Paris. There are a dozen or so other worthy projects which have been suggested for 1932. None of them will cost a great deal of money, in fact many of them require only work.

The Chamber of Commerce and its very fine group of committees can and will lead in the work, but it is necessary to have the cooperation of the people in general.

THERE is now and has for many years been too much indifference among our people on such work. We are too prone to leave it to some one else. But the worst thing about it is that there appears to be an increasing epidemic of what we call "civic laziness."

The loyal people who are heading up the enterprises above mentioned and many others which have been outlined by the Chamber of Commerce, should command the interest and active support of all the people.

Let more people come to a deeper appreciation of the fact that they are standing in their own light when they fail to do their civic duty. There is a definite responsibility resting upon every citizen and no one should try to dodge it.

Let's tell these committees that we are interested and that we are willing to work. Let us offer our services, subject to call, and then when the call comes get in the harness and help put these worthy projects over. 1932 is the year—not later.

UNDERGROUND CACHE YIELDS TO BANK

Old Size Musty Bills Again Go Into Circulation

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Feb. 8. (AP)—A stack of musty bills—$2,900 worth—came out of an underground hiding place and went back into circulation here today.

The currency—five, ten and twenty dollar notes of the old size—was placed in a bank by a depositor, Charles A. Gordon, cashier, said the musty condition of the money indicated it had been buried in the ground a long time.

Sheriff, Citizen Are Murdered By Negro Jailbreaker

NEWTON, Texas, Feb. 8. (AP)—Sheriff Ave C. Humphrey, about 50, and B. A. Meadows, about 55, of Newton were killed Monday night by Caesar Powell, negro, who overpowered Constable Reay Hamilton in the county jail in an attempt to escape. The negro was shot to death by two other Newton residents who rushed in.

Humphrey was killed instantly. Meadows, manager of a lumber company, was taken to a hospital at Jasper, dying as he arrived there. R. A. Collins, filling station proprietor and Lee Davis, employee of an automobile company, finally stopped the negro's wild fight for freedom.

The negro was arrested on a charge of having killed his wife Sunday night near the Jasper county line. He had been placed in jail Monday morning.

Hamilton Monday night entered the jail to lock the prisoners in for the night. The negro jumped at him from behind, grabbed his keys and used the bar to which they were fastened to beat the officer to the floor. He then took the constable's pistol.

Hamilton had called for help. Humphrey and Meadows ran in and were filled by bullets from the constable's weapon, then in the hands of the negro. The other two men came in and ended the fight. They used the sheriff's pistol to kill the negro.

Humphrey was survived by his widow and seven children. Meadows was married and had five children.

GENEVA SPOKESMEN WARN OF DISASTER

France and Great Britain Disagree On Safety Measures

GENEVA, Feb. 8. (AP)—Solemn warnings that the failure of the disarmament conference would bring about a world disaster were issued Monday by spokesmen of Great Britain and France, but they differed about the way to safety.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, said reductions in arms were needed. Andre Tardieu, the French war minister, averred that international peace must be guaranteed by converting the League of Nations into a strong military power.

CAMPAIGN TO JAR HOARDED MONEY LOOSE OUTLINED

Col. Frank Knox Tells of
Plans to Organize
Every State

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—An intensive campaign—spread nationwide to bring hoarded money back into circulation by "restoring the confidence of Americans in America" was outlined Monday at the White House by the man who will head it, Col. Frank Knox of Chicago.

He gave the following diagnosis of present difficulties: "Much of our trouble seems to be a national headache induced by eye strain from looking across the Atlantic. We can't remedy conditions in Europe, but we can remedy them here."

Knox, in outlining plans for his campaign, said telegrams already had been dispatched to every state looking toward the choice of "aggressive individuals who have the confidence of the people" to head each state committee. Each will be charged with setting up an organization in every community, he said, uniting in the community newspapers, boards of trade, the American Legion, Rotary, Kiwanis, American Federation of Labor and other groups.

Japanese Minister Says Of-

Until Chinese Retreat

(Copyright, 1932, The Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Feb. 9. (Tuesday)—Japanese hammered the rain-washed ruins of Chapei again Tuesday in a new attack on Chinese strongholds in Shanghai after a furious assault on the forts of Woosung had been turned back by the raking fire of Chinese machine guns.

They shelled the battlefield here with light artillery, while Japanese airplanes dropped bombs and ripped machine-gun bullets into the area already torn by eleven days of intermittent bombardment and ravaged by fires.

Bluejackets Reinforced.

Japanese soldiers were rushed into Chapei to reinforce the bluejackets already there.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, said the offensive would continue until the Chinese were driven back at least 20 miles from Shanghai. That was his reply to the proposal of Vice Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, commander of the British naval forces, for an immediate end to the hostilities. The proposal had been accepted in principle by the Chinese.

Land at Settlement.

The first contingent of Japanese troops was landed at the international settlement Tuesday morning.

The soldiers stepped ashore from two steamers at the docks of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha steamship line in the Japanese-occupied Hongchow section. One detachment after another raced toward Chapei in motor trucks.

Three truck loads of Japanese army and navy officers led the way for approximately 600 sturdy and smartly attired regular soldiers, all in fighting trim, landed before noon.

Foreigners Wounded.

Foreigners and Chinese residents in the international settlement were wounded Tuesday by badly directed artillery fire from both Chinese and Japanese guns in the battle of Chapei.

Mrs. Larry Robertson, British wife of a detective inspector in the municipal police force, was wounded by the bursting of a shell while walking in a street.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Reports of the fighting about Shanghai were overshadowed Monday for official Washington by press dispatches from Tokyo suggesting that Japan may sound out interested powers on the question of creating neutral zones twenty miles wide about China's great ports.

Diplomats Amazed.

The proposed demilitarization by international agreement of wide zones about Shanghai, Hankow, Tientsin, Canton and Tientsin amazed the diplomats backing the United States peace plan.

A diplomatic circle's creation of neutral zones about the leading Chinese cities seemed little short of a dismemberment of the country and its partition among foreign powers. Many thought it would undo the efforts of John Hay and all his successors for the protection of China's territorial integrity.

Japanese Surprised.

CHICAGO ELECTION OFFICIALS ACCUSED

Twenty Who Served As Judges Are Held; Others As Suspects

CHICAGO, Feb. 8. (AP)—Twenty men who served as judges in the last election in Illinois' eighth congressional district were arrested Monday on charges of fraud on writs of attachment issued two weeks ago and detectives were reported searching for more election officials.

The election was bitterly contested by Peter C. Granata, Republican, and Stanley Kunz, Democrat, with Granata declared winner by a narrow margin.

HOUSE CHEERS AS GARNER PROPOSED FOR NOMINATION

Texas Would Be Good
Choice in Lieu Smith,
Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Stirred as by no other developments since the tempestuous days of '28, the Democrats of the nation read and reread the pronouncements of Alfred E. Smith, and began once more taking sides for and against him.

In spite of his reiteration that he would not seek renomination,

Not a Candidate

Al Smith Asserts

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. (AP)—Alfred E. Smith pounded his desk Monday and said he was "not a candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Nothing in the statement I gave out for this morning's papers can be interpreted as an announcement that I am a candidate," he told 20 newspaper men in his skyscraper office.

"All I said was that I would accept the nomination if the convention should choose me."

It remained the almost unanimous opinion of political leaders that his willingness to accept support had put him squarely into the contest.

The house cheered a proposal by Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, that Speaker John Garner be made the nominee if Smith and Roosevelt stop each other.

The brief debate in the house started when Blanton declared that Smith's statement "puts him out of the running before it gets started."

"But suppose we nominate John Garner of Texas, we will sure win, will we not?" asked Representative May, Democrat, Kentucky.

"John Garner would sweep the country as sure as we live," replied Blanton.

Preacher Charges Atheism Is Taught In Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas, Feb. 8. (AP)—Investigation into charges made by Dr. R. C. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church here, that theism and infidelity is being taught in Texas Technological college will be set in motion on Tuesday by President Paul W. Horn, the school's official announced Monday night.

"A department head and a group of professors associated with him on the college faculty are teaching atheism and infidelity," the pastor of Lubbock's largest church charged from his pulpit.

"I don't believe any person in this college is engaging in the teaching of atheism to students," Doctor Horn replied, "but I prefer to make a statement after talking to Doctor Campbell. I will ask the minister for his evidence."

The minister alleged "this same professor when discussing the birth of Christ in a classroom was asked if God or Joseph was the father of Christ, grinningly and cynically replied: 'I was not there, therefore I do not know. This is scholarship for you.'"

FEDERAL ACTION ON UNEMPLOYED STILL DELAYED

Congress Occupies Itself
Monday With Work
Left Over

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Congress occupied itself for the most part Monday with tasks before it at the end of last week. Indications were that it would be several days before the senate voted on proposals for direct federal aid for the jobless.

The relief picture on the house side Monday came from a committee, the agriculture group voting down the senate bill to distribute 40,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat to the needy.

In the senate territories committee, where several bills proposing Philippine independence are under consideration, Chairman Bingham expressed opposition to any measure which would set the islands free in the near future.

Police Baffled In Search For Killers Of Gangster

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. (AP)—The trail of Vincent Coll's killers was forked Monday night. One road led into the secret places of New York's underworld; another pointed toward Chicago.

But wherever the detectives went they were balked by the bland silence of the mobs. Gangland's denizens had seen and heard nothing, and such thoughts as they had were kept to themselves.

Meanwhile, the body of Coll, betrayed by his own bodyguard and riddled, literally, with machine gun pellets as he stood in a phone booth in old Chelsea just after Sunday midnight, was removed from the morgue to an undertaker's.

It was followed by his widow, Lottie, a bride of a few weeks and one of the few persons, probably, who was genuinely sorry he died. Both the police and the gangs frankly considered his murder a "good riddance."

So unpopular was Coll with the underworld that within the last few weeks it had been reported that a price of $50,000 had been placed on his head, to be paid to the "trigger men" who got him.

FEDERAL RELIEF BILLS DRAW FIRE

Wheat Distribution Bill Passed By Senate Is Stranded

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Confident they can beat proposals for direct federal aid to the jobless, Republican leaders listened quietly Monday to criticism of the $375,000,000 La Follette-Costigan bill and praise of the $750,000,000 Democratic substitute.

Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, said the provisions of the $375,000,000 measure calling for its distribution by a federal board would contribute to bureaucracy and would send "snoopers" into the homes of citizens.

Meanwhile another relief measure—the proposal to distribute 40,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat to the needy—was stranded in the house. It had already passed the senate, but the house agriculture committee voted against it 14 to 9. Chairman Jones of the committee indicating that some of his group felt the wheat should be bought from the farmers.

J. E. Newberry, chief defense counsel, announced Monday night Marshall would be ready to take the witness stand "if the state makes a case that will be submitted to the jury."

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 8. (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd was speedily convicted of murder tonight and the death penalty was prescribed by the all-male jury which heard her trial for the trunk murder of Mrs. Agnes Anne LeRoi.

Without batting an eye the pale young defendant heard the verdict and then went steadily to her cell ahead of Sheriff J. R. McFadden and a trailing throng of spectators. Mrs. Judd also is charged with killing Hedvig Samuelson. Both were her friends.

The sheriff expressed fear she would attempt suicide before February 23, the date set by Judge Howard C. Speakman for pronouncement of sentence.

The habitual winding and unwinding of her handkerchief about her left hand did not cease as the jury filed into the court room after being out about 3 hours and 40 minutes, an hour of which was taken for dinner.

Sheriff McFadden said Mrs. Judd looked into her mirror after reaching her cell. He expressed belief that she soon would give way to another emotional outburst such as those she had during the trial.

The murder verdict and extreme penalty demanded by the prosecution was decided upon despite the appeal of the defense for a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity. Judge Speakman had instructed the jurors that they might return (Continued on Page Seven)

LIQUOR RUNNING LOSES CHARM AS POLICE CLOSE IN

Three Arrests Made Sunday and Monday; 56 Gallons In 10 Days

Confiscation of 48 half gallons of whiskey early Sunday morning completed a third major seizure by city patrolmen within the last ten days for a total of 113 half gallons of liquor.

After trailing a light touring car several blocks, Night Chief Newt Baker, Patrolmen Sterling Stamper and John Wilburn, early Sunday morning forced the automobile to a stop on Graham street. The two occupants of the car were arrested 48 half gallons of whiskey seized and the automobile confiscated. Patrolmen swung in behind the car on North Main street.

Pleading guilty to charges of possessing and transporting liquor, the two men Monday were committed to the county jail in default of $500 bonds set by U. S. Commissioner John S. Stone.

Obviously, Fannin county rum runners must seek other routes to and from the Oklahoma whiskey fields. The arrest Sunday morning was the third seizure of whiskey from Fannin county residents during the past ten days. All three automobiles were spotted on North Main street by city patrolmen and "knocked down" after they turned west headed for Highway No. 5.

The major whiskey haul early Sunday morning was followed by two whiskey seizures by county officers later Sunday morning and Monday afternoon.

While cruising through the black belt north of town, about 11 o'clock Sunday morning, John Pride and Walter Hargrove, deputy constables intercepted a negro as he attempted a break a half gallon jar of whiskey. The negro was "snotted" as (Continued on Page Seven)

Building Permits For January Break Ten Year Record

CITY ENGINEER'S REPORT TOTALS FORTY IN MONTH

Expenditure of $9,234 Included in Projects Listed During Past Month

Topping all records for building permits issued in January during the past ten years, a total of 40 permits were issued during January, 1932, compared with thirteen permits issued in 1921, according to a report released Monday by Walter Hicks, city engineer.

The high mark for building permits issued in January during the past ten years heretofore was 30 permits issued in 1921, according to the records at the city engineer's office.

Although the permits issued in January, 1932, did not approach in number the permits issued this year the involved expenditures reached higher totals. Aggregate sum listed in permits of January, 1932, was $12,625; for January, 1930, $26,140; for January, 1922, $9,234.

Despite the fact the building permits issued in January, 1932, involved greater expenditures than did those of January, 1931, the outstriking number of permits indicate a greater activity in building and renovations. Issued during a month when building and repairing is usually slow, the January, 1932, permits showed a brisk ascendancy for the new year.

The $9,234 expenditures listed in January permits is an increase over similar monthly expenditures in May, June, July, August, October, November and December of 1931. Aggregate sum involved in January permits is greater than expenditures listed in permits in February, July, October and December of 1930.

In compliance with the city ordinance, all property owners letting contracts for building or repairs are required to obtain building permits from the city engineer's office. The permits are issued free of charge. These permits provide the city engineer with the necessary records relative to construction and repairs of buildings within the corporate limits.

Spirit Is Subject of Lesson-Sermon

The subject of the lesson-sermon was "Spirit" in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday.

1 Corinthians 12:12 furnished the golden text. "We have received, not the spirit of the world, but we might know the things that are freely given to us of God."

Included with the passages read from the Bible were from 1 Corinthians 12:4-6: "Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit . . . And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all."

The service also included the following citation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 451):

"Man walks in the direction towards which he looks, and where his treasure is, there will his heart be also. If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the spirit."

Nicotine is derived from the leaves of the tobacco plant, introduced into France in 1580.

A 20,000-Man-Size Job

Men must eat. Trainloads of butter, eggs and poultry move every week into New York and Chicago. Carloads move every week into hundreds of smaller cities. Shut off the supplies for a brief time and millions would go hungry.

Men must sell. Trainloads of produce move every week out of the farming centers. Stop buying for a little while and eggs would grow old, butterfat lose its value, poultry pass its prime. Hundreds of thousands of producers would lose money.

Regularity of supply can be assured only by widespread buying. Transportation costs must be kept low by shipping in carload lots. To obtain good prices from the men with the dinner tables, there must be efficient salesmen and accurate, hour-to-hour reports on demand everywhere.

A man-size job? More than that. Swift & Company makes this a 20,000-man-size job. That many, and more, of its employees devote all or part of their time to buying, processing, selling and distributing poultry, dairy products and eggs.

Over a hundred Swift produce plants pay cash for what the farmer produces. Leased wires 7,500 miles long keep experts informed where demand is greatest and supplies are shipped to these points. Branch houses and car routes serve 10,400 cities and towns.

The same salesmen who sell meat take orders for butter and eggs. One delivery suffices where two would be needed if produce and meat were distributed separately. Handling them together makes workers more efficient. Therefore, cost of distribution, both of meat and of produce, are lowered.

Swift & Company is a national marketing institution. It is also several hundred local institutions. Packing houses, branch houses, produce plants—more than 650 in all—employ local men whose pay checks help to keep their communities prosperous. A rounded line of foodstuffs enables these men to give a better and a less costly service to all classes of producers.

Charges are reasonable. Profits of Swift & Company from all sources, over a period of years, have averaged less than one-half cent per pound of product handled.

Made as the battered Coast Guard destroyer Weldon C. Herndon was towed stern first into New London, Conn., this photo shows the huge rent torn in the side of the craft when she was rammed, 65 miles off Block Island, by the collier Lemuel Burrows. Although there were 92 men and seven officers aboard the destroyer at the time of the accident, no one was seriously injured. Immediately news of the collision was flashed several other Coast Guard vessels sped to the scene and acted as convey to the crippled boat as she was towed to port by the collier.

Hurrah! The War Is Over!

Here is the final scene in the "bridge battle of the century" after the 150th and final rubber had been played. The game, played at New York to test the merits of the opposing systems of Sidney Lenz and Ely Culbertson, took six weeks to decide, ending in a victory for the Culbertsons by a margin of 8,980 points. Photo shows the vanquished team congratulating the victors. Left to right are: Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., Sidney Lenz, Oswald Jacoby (all of the Lenz team), Mrs. Culbertson and her husband, Ely Culbertson.

Shipmates Ahoy!

The life of a sailor may have its moments of hardship, but with shipmates like those above the main could do all the boondoggling and no one would grumble. The fair sailorettes are Ann Swanson, left, of Chicago, and Jewell Watkins, of New York, pictured on one of the sailing vessels that took part in the opening of the yachting season at Miami Beach, Fla.

Miss Andre has no stage or screen experience, but has the distinction of being the most photographed girl in America, her face having appeared on innumerable magazine covers. She intends to study film work for three months before she makes her appearance before the camera.

Like Cabbage?

The fellow who said cabbages and kings should have made it cabbages and queens, and probably would have if he had met this young lady, who is Miss Freeda Harding of McAllen, Texas. And the 30-pound cabbage was grown on a truck farm near McAllen, in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. It's the kind of a cabbage that helps make up a ton in a hurry.

Chores for the Army Tank

What's so simple as putting an army to work doing odd jobs about the place? When officers condemned this building at Fort Sam Houston, it was an easy matter to be rid of it. This army tank demolished it thoroughly, then it was burned. It was formerly a stable where horses with glanders, a dangerous disease, were quarantined, and it was destroyed to obliterate any glanders germs which might be lurking in the stable.

Where Death Rode the Runway

This remarkable photo, made on the Zackelfall course at Schreiberhau, Germany, shows a four-man bobsled at the exact moment when, traveling at terrific speed, it shot off the course at a dangerous "S" curve and crashed into the little group of spectators massed at that point. Such was the velocity of the sled that the force with which it struck killed three spectators and injured seventeen.

SORE THROAT

here's a world of winter comfort in Bayer Aspirin tablets. If you take them only to break-up colds, you know only half the story. Some tablets crushed in a little water will relieve the sorest throat with one good gargle. That's what the specialists use in cases of sore throat. That's what you ought to use at home—every time you want throat comfort and protection from infection. Remember, every case of tonsillitis began with just a sore throat! Don't neglect any sore throat. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first tickling felt. Take a couple of tablets for that headache that comes with a cold—for neuralgia, neuritis, or similar pain. If it's genuine Bayer, it can't hurt the heart.

Grayson Roach, motorcycle offi- cer, found the bicycle Monday and returned it to the owner.

According to police the railroad yards have been filled with drift- ers during the last few days. A large number were rounded up Monday morning by Patrolmen Bill Maddox and told to leave the city.

Bill Parks, who was in the city Monday from Brookston, stated a number of farmers in that section began plowing, picking bolls and cutting stalks, and that the num- ber would be increased Tuesday if the weather holds.

The fire department had a call to the home of Jerry Hill, negro, Sunday where a small hole was burned in the top of the roof. The house is the property of George Hull, it was stated.

The fire department answered a call to the home of Pete Dudley, 420 Lamar avenue, Sunday, where a small hole was burned in the roof. Three alarms were also an- swered for grass fires Sunday.

Fire that originated from burn- ing grass, ignited the fencing at the home of T. J. Henley Sunday and also threatened the garage. The fire department extinguished the blaze with only slight damage.

Persons in the city Monday from various sections of the coun- ty said farm work had started in many communities. Many farmers are gathering corn, it was stated—the first real opportunity they have had for several weeks.

Two men later turned over to the federal authorities on charges of possessing liquor, were arrest- ed Saturday night by Patrolmen Newt Baker, Sterling Stamper and John Wilburn, on Graham street, and it was alleged there were 48 half gallons of liquor in the car.

J. J. Crawford, president of the Lamar Quail club, received a letter from the state game warden in which he states that it is impos- sible to put Calvert Allen, deputy game warden in this section, back to work at this time. His retire- ment was made necessary by a ro- tation program, it was stat- ed.

A movement is being agitated by J. J. Crawford, president of the Lamar Quail club, to interest sportsmen of the city in building a pier at Lake Crook for the con- venience of those who wish to fish but do not own boats on the lake. Crawford's plan is to raise the money necessary to buy the lum- ber by popular subscription from the members of the quail club and citizens. The pier would make fishing possible to all, Mr. Craw- ford stated.

Mrs. Whipple Funeral At Roston Tuesday

ROXTON, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Ola Braddock Whipple, wife of G. K. Whipple, died at the Paris san- itarium after a long illness. The body was brought to Roston Mon- day and funeral services will be held at the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with burial at the McGlasson graveyard.

Mrs. Whipple was born and reared at the Braddock homestead between Roston and the Oklaho- ma community, and twelve years ago was married to G. K. Whipple. Before marriage she taught school in Texas and Oklahoma, and had some real estate holdings in the latter state. She was a member of the Methodist church and taught a class in the Sunday school. She is survived by her husband, her brothers, K. B. Braddock of Garvin, Okla., and Neely and O. M. Brad- dock of Roston; her sister, Mrs. Berta Wilson of Idabel, Okla., and two nieces to whom she was a mother, Mmes. Hubert Payne of Roston and J. R. Peters of Mount Vernon.

TACKLING THE TARIFF

HAVING a majority there, the Democrats in the national house of representatives would be expected to bring in a tariff bill and, probably pass it up to the senate. That now is an announced plan. Although rejected in the senate, or if passed by the senate and eventually killed by President Hoover's veto, such a measure would serve as the somewhat substantial basis of tariff argument during the coming national campaign.

The circumstances call upon the Democrats for the definition of a tariff program, and the question is whether the resulting effort to meet the case turns out a narrowly conceived political gesture or stands up as offering in the large way a tariff solution.

There is enough authoritative agreement. It is true that the depressed conditions in this country and throughout the world were in large part caused by tariffs. In the Hawley-Smoot tariff act the United States surpassed all its own prior records for high tariffs and became the instigator of new extremes in an international war already existing. In large numbers, retaliations by other nations followed the passage of our law. At last, after 100 years of firm adherence, Great Britain now finally has abandoned the free trade principles. The high tariff of emergency tariffs recently promulgated by the nationalist government in England are to be supplanted next spring it is announced, by a more thorough protective tariff system.

The climax would seem capped and the vicious international competition to restrain trade would seem clamped the more firmly upon the world. It need not be so. Even as we led in creating the evil, we might lead in undoing it.

Demand exists for the enunciation of a better United States tariff policy and the Democrats are in the strategic place to do the enunciating. In the formulation will the Democrats show breadth and vision? Reductions or repeals of extravagantly high tariffs, such as are found in the sugar schedule can be based solely on strong domestic arguments, good in political campaigning. But more than the home viewpoint needs to enter. It has been our trouble that tariffs were fixed on narrow considerations which centered at Washington a host of conflicting home interests. The demand now manifestly looks for a broader base in tariff writing.

NOT CAUSE FOR A "BOOM"

HYSTERICAL reaction, exaggerated expectations or any interpretations breeding faith in an immediate "boom" would be the worst that can attend the prompt action in congress on President Hoover's program for an economic reconstruction. In a few days we have seen the creation of the Emergency Finance Reconstruction Corporation, with Charles G. Dawes at its head. It backs the banks, insurance companies, railroads and the basic structure of our finance and business with the enormous sum of two billion dollars.

If the terms of the act creating the corporation did not prohibit it as they do, the naming of Dawes, a Chicago man, would be enough guarantee that this huge reservoir of money will not be used to protect bad cases in New York due to bad foreign loans. This is a domestic measure purely, and we can believe that the two billion will be spread through the country fairly.

Then the bill adding the $125,000,000 to the immediate resources of the Federal Land Banks also at once has become law. Companion measures for bank depositor's relief and home loan discounts through other corporations to be set up on government credit, seem in course of prompt enactment.

This showing of broad, courageous action, wherein Democrats and Republicans in congress, for the most part, have co-operated, justifies an abiding confidence in a certainty. We shall see a gradual return to "good business," an end of "hoarding" and the protection of the true values in multitudes of "frozen assets." Yet another thing nevertheless is true. No assurances whatever are given of a sunrise over another radiant day of jazz prosperity.

The whole depends upon calm and general public confidence. Towards that, the next support must be the proof by congress and the administration of steps which will reduce federal expenditures to such an extent that a balanced national budget can be foreseen within a definite time.

ALL OF US
By Marshall Maslin

EVERYTHING is topsy-turvy. Didn't you know that? Yes, you did—but you haven't put it into words, and we often know truths without discovering that we know them.

We are afraid because we run away. We think, to be sure, that we run away because we are afraid, but that isn't true. . . . We face a roaring lion and our feet take us swiftly from that place. Then fear floods our being and we shiver. But until we fled we were not afraid.

We face a great peril and we plant our feet solidly and strike out boldly. Then, afterward, we are brave. Something within us comes to our rescue, strengthens our arm, makes more stubborn our courage. . . . A gland within us pours a strengthening elixir into our veins and we are twice the battling warrior we had ever dreamed of being.

We love money before we get it. We want something else first: we want conflict, power, a testing of our strength; money comes along and takes possession of us. Then we fall in love with its bright golden face and we are misers. . . . But we were misers before we ever had money. . . . We are not arrogant because we have power. We were arrogant first and sought food on which our arrogance might feed.

Men are not wise because they have a great fund of knowledge. Many a man is wise who knows little that is fed to boys and girls in school. Many a child is wise before he knows his letters. . . . Women are not tender because their pity is aroused. They act gently toward the poor, the suffering, the betrayed and then their pity blooms like a flower. The tiger loves blood before he has seized his piteous prey, and the humble are gentle before they have sweetened their lives with humility.

Men act and then they give their reason. They are themselves first, before they try to explain and justify themselves.

Everything SEEMS topsy-turvy, but it is not really so. If the world seems awry and contradictory, it is because we—too often—are expecting to be admired for our marvelous ability to stand on our heads.

Life is not wild and frantic—it is serene and steady enough for those who are not turning flips.

Backward Glances
By A. W. Neville

THE principal reason for the popularity of Robert Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" lies in the fact that the average man or woman does not believe most of the things they have not seen done, and sometimes have doubts of those they have seen. An air of incredulity is a characteristic trait of the average human, and nowadays more than ever, since so many things heretofore thought to be impossible have come to pass.

I remember a case in point, here in Paris more than forty years ago, perhaps nearer fifty years. There had come a balloonist to Paris to make an ascension. Now, balloon ascensions were no novelty in even those days as almost everybody had seen one or more men go up in the air holding onto a trapeze at the bottom of the bag filled with hot air, but this balloonist proposed to do more—he asserted that after he got up he would jump from the balloon and come down in a parachute.

The parachute was a new idea, that few if any people here had seen. The balloonist, as was the custom then, depended for his pay on contributions from the crowd that was attracted and usually the collection was small. It was thought that by reason of this particular ascension being different from others it was worthy of more pay, so Captain John Walker, who was managing the opera house and was a sort of general amusement promoter, undertook to raise some money for the balloonist.

Among others on whom he called was T. H. Freese, then in business on the east side of the square. When told for what purpose the contribution was wanted he flatly refused to give a cent. "Always I give," he said, "when you ask for such things, but for something like you say, not a cent. The man is crazy or a liar. He can't jump from a balloon and come down alive—he'll break his neck. I don't give a cent for no such scheme," and he stuck to it.

The balloon ascension was made from the middle of the square, where a pit was dug over which the balloon was placed and fire built under it to supply the hot air necessary to inflate it. When all was ready the balloonist called into the air on his trapeze and after reaching his desired height he leaped off, cut loose his parachute and sailed safely to the ground in the edge of the city. Mr. Freese had seen the performance and as soon as he could find Captain Walker he called to him and made a liberal contribution. "I didn't believe he could do it," he said, "but he did and it was worth the money."

Seeing was believing in this case, but he had to see it first.

NEW YORK. — The town has gone cuckoo over trick problems and mental tests. Some of the teasers now going the rounds are not without color and even imagination. One, sprung at a party the other night is such a hum-dinger—and incidentally so much more awesome on the surface than anything else in its class—that I've decided to print it.

Washington Daily Letter
By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — As usual, with a national convention right ahead of them, Democratic leaders are talking again of changing their party's presidential rule. And, as usual, no one defends it—and, as usual, there seems to be mighty little real energy back of the evidently virtually unanimous sentiment that it is a thoroughly mischievous rule and ought to have been changed long ago, and certainly ought to be changed this time.

The peculiar thing about it is this: The rule's effect is to enable a Democratic convention minority of anything in excess of one-third (Though it be only a vote or two) to prevent a majority of anything less than two-thirds from making the party's choice of a presidential ticket.

And yet a bare majority's right to change the rule is hardly, if at all, disputed.

Why, then, does not the candidate, who has the majority (but not a two-thirds majority) of the delegates in his favor at the beginning of any given convention, use his majority at the very outset to have the two-thirds rule changed—whereupon his less than two-thirds majority will be sufficient to nominate him?

The only answer is that he cannot afford to be accused of changing the rules of the game in his own interest.

Consequently the change must be made AFTER the nomination, with a view to the NEXT convention; not BEFORE the selection of a standard bearer or while the fight over the selection of one is in progress. And after the nomination has been made, all hands are in a desperate hurry to leave, and the matter is not attended to.

In 1920, for example, the rules committee of the Jeffersonian convention which nominated James M. Cox unanimously adopted a resolution offered by Senator William King of Utah, to substitute the straight majority principle at the 1924 convention, for the two-thirds requirement.

That little problem can be easily and simply solved. If you find yourself headed for a padded cell after working with it, and if you want the whole amazingly simple method of its solution, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll rush you the answer. Could anything be fairer?

"SHOW EYES"

Many a producer has relied more implicitly than his associates realized on the reaction of a small daughter to his shows. Gloria, the eleven-year-old daughter of Marco of the Fanchon and Marco outfit, is a case in point.

Another is Patricia Ziegfeld, who is quite a young lady now, but whose reactions to "Follies" have been carefully attended by her father for a good many years. Maurice Barrymore relied on the judgment of Ethel when that famous lady was a child, and so did Ethel's uncle, John Drew.

There's a theatrical legend that whenever John Drew dressed for a new romantic role in the heyday of his fame at the old Wallack's, oke, John let it stand, despite any he'd strut before Ethel and ask how he looked. If she gave his rig the criticisms that might be made by older heads.

Comments From Contemporaries

MARSHALL NEWS

My attention has been called to the fact that all this talk about this being a jazz age and that all the people think about (especially the feminine) is have a good time, and that frivolity has crowded out all serious and worthwhile matters, is all a mistake. And in proof I was shown that this paper on last Saturday, which is about the dullest day of the week in social happenings contained the names of 152 women who were recorded as having been in some worthwhile activity the day before. Some were recorded as being in club meetings, many in church societies, others busy about some lodge affair, other at Parent-Teachers meetings, and not one of these 152 women but was doing something for the betterment of the community. And it is fair to presume in these activities that not more than one woman's name in ten attended these various meetings was mentioned, this would mean that on last Friday 1520 women of Marshall were doing something in our religious, educational and social life for betterment—not frivolity. Possibly we overlooked the more important things and marvel at the exception.

Several times recently Denison folk have been aroused by boys calling "Extra." Thinking some great catastrophe had taken place they have bought the "extra" to see what it was all about. They have found themselves with a Dallas paper several hours old, telling of some event which had happened in Dallas that morning or the night before. As these moderns say, Why, for crying out loud, should this "extra" racket be extended to Denison? The latest extra to be sold on the streets told us that Trinity river was out of its banks and a flood was threatened down Dallas way. This fact had been duly chronicled in the local press and vouched for by many Denisonians who were in Dallas over the week end. It certainly isn't a matter of such moment to Denisonians that they should go down into their pockets and fish out shakels to buy Dallas newspapers.

Diet and Health

By Logan Clendening, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

Are you naturally left-handed and were you trained to use your right hand, and do you stutter as a consequence?

That is one of the many questions which stuttering brings up.

"I would like to know a cure for stuttering," says a letter in my letter box.

"The little boy that I am referring to is three years of age, and has just begun stuttering here of late, but seems to be doing it more often than when he began."

Could it be possible that it comes from a nervous condition? I have noticed red blotches appear on his neck, and he seems to have more difficulty in his speech when he is in the presence of strangers."

Of course stuttering is a nervous affliction, although that is making the word "nervous" carry a large load. The condition is one of extreme complexity and differs much from one stutterer to another.

The most complete account of the subject is found in a recent book called "Speech Pathology," by Dr. L. E. Travis. (Published by Appleton). The author's preliminary studies in the physiology of speech are founded to some extent upon the concept of the Gestalt psychology.

Speech is a very complicated function. In performing it one thinks of what he is going to say, remembers the words needed, moves the muscles of the larynx in a certain way, also the muscles of the lips and tongue, holds the diaphragm and abdominal muscles tense, and in emphasizing the emotional content of the speech turns the eyes this way or that and contorts the muscles of the face, throws the head about and (some of us more than others) move the hands and arms.

Complex as all this is, we do it as a unit. We do not stop to think which comes first any more than a thousand legged bug stops to think which leg goes forward next. The trouble with the stutterer seems to be that he gets some of these functions separately instead of performing them as a unit, and some of them get ahead of their turn so there is a traffic jam and nothing comes through.

Among the most frequent causes of stuttering is making a right-handed person out of a natural left-handed person.

One study of 200 stutterers showed that 2 per cent were originally left-handed and were required to shift to the right hand, another group studied at another place 43 per cent were originally left-handed.

A little boy who was left-handed spoke perfectly normally until he was six years old, entered school and was taught to write with his right hand. He began to stutter and did so until he entered the second grade, where he was allowed to write with his left hand when his stuttering stopped.

Questions from Readers: A. S. H.: "Will the treatment of underweight with insulin, which you mentioned a few days ago, also increase the weight of a patient with diabetes?"

Answer: Diabetics using insulin usually increase in weight, or at least regain the weight which they have lost. It is not advisable for a diabetic patient to attempt to gain weight indefinitely as this makes their difficulties greater. It is probably better for a diabetic to keep five or ten pounds under normal weight for his health.

TALKS WITH PARENTS
By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

In the "Ohio Teacher," under the caption "Home-School Relationships," I wrote recently about some things of interest, I hope, to parents. It ran about as follows:

In spite of our best efforts at school, most of the child's education is not gained there. It goes on outside of school, chiefly at home, whether the teachers and his parents are aware of it or not. Why should we not set out deliberately to contribute toward this larger field of education to the end that it shall be more effective at home and that it shall make school education more effective too?

The learner's basic habits, attitudes, emotions are established for the most part in his home, even before he begins to go to school, and while he is attending school these factors have most of their normal routine in the home. Each day he comes to school he brings with him his home and much of his home along with him; and when he leaves the school in the afternoon he goes back to his home. It is there his life runs along naturally, as a rule. How he is treated there by his parents and others of the family, how worthy and secure he feels as a member of his family, his home habits and emotional life are determined largely by his success at school.

It is the child invisible, the sacred personality, that comes to school. Unseen, but felt, by him, may be his loved ones in the school. Side by side they sit with him, hand in hand they walk with him. These unseen guests at school may interrupt him with annoyances while he tries to study spelling, history or algebra; or make his learning easier by whispering words of encouragement, sorrows, worries, fears, he may have at school on their account; or hopes and joys and courage they may bring to him. Back in his consciousness may be vague or vivid memory of troubles and discouragements.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry Myers, in care of this paper, Central Press Association, 143 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are "Feminine Hygiene and Rewards" and "Fear."

PERSONAL ADVICE
By Virginia Lee

In these days of night schools and colleges it makes slight difference how little formal education a person has. He always can get more.

It depends entirely on the spirit of the person in question whether he gets the training which enables him to take a high priced position or remains a day laborer. If he is ambitious and a hard worker, he may quit school in the grammar grades and still gain a fine education.

So you girls who hesitate to marry a certain young man check up on the sort of spirit your boy friend shows rather than on the grade in which he happened to be when he was forced to quit school. Many a college graduate is put to shame by a so-called "self-made" man who has taken care of his own education.

JUST A TROUBLED BRUNETTE: This answers your problem, does it not? If your boy friend is ambitious, bound to get on, in spite of his handicap, don't be afraid to continue the association.

If he is not anxious to make the most of himself, better give him up, dear, as I am afraid you would not be satisfied with him for a husband, and you would find, as years went on, that you grew a class companionable.

FAITHFULLY YOURS: I see reason why you need to discontinue your correspondence with this young man if you care to retain his friendship. If he asks you to become something more than a friend you can gently tell him that you don't care for him in that way.

A. B. T.: There always are a few girls who are girls who sim can't be near any male person without flirting with them. They never true to one person very long as the latest comer always attracts them. Don't let the girl in your case see that you are worried. As to the boy, if he is so self and easily influenced, let him be. He isn't worth worrying about. At the same time, don't just let him over to her, of course. He must to him.

County Basket Ball Title To Be Decided Tuesday Night

WINNER OF GAME WILL REPRESENT LAMAR FEB. 19

Rural and Class B Champions Meet Tonight in Final Encounter

The honor of representing Lamar county in the District 5 basketball tournament which will begin here Friday February 19, will be decided Tuesday night, when Marvin, winner of the rural title, tangles with Paris high school Wildcats, winner of class B honors.

Although the high school team has greater reserve strength and has defeated the Marvin quint once, they have no cinch on winning the county title. The rural champions have shown considerable improvement since the beginning of the county tournament and like the Wildcats, have not suffered a conference defeat during the present season. Although the Paris five won from Marvin, it was earlier in the season and was on the high school court.

Both quintets have some outstanding players and local fans may expect to see one of the hardest fought games of the year Tuesday night.

The game will be played at the Fair park coliseum, beginning at 8 o'clock. The opening game of the evening will be between teachers and coaches of the county and will begin at 7 o'clock.

GOBER-WILDCAT GAME TO PRECEDE COLLEGE MATCH

Local High School Quintet Matched With Fannin Five In Opener

Local basketball fans are offered one of the best title bills for the season Thursday evening, when the Paris junior college Dragons meet the Tyler Indians at the fair park coliseum, following an opening game between Gober high school of Fannin county and the Paris high school Wildcats.

The two junior college quintets are said to be rather evenly matched, though the Dragons are favored through having defeated the Texarkana Bulldogs by wide margins while Tyler only beat the Bulldogs by three points.

Tyler comes here for a two-game series, both of which will be played at the coliseum. Friday night's game will follow a game between the Wildcats and the Miller All-Stars, who came so close to beating them last Friday evening on the high school court.

The Gober team with which the local high school five will tangle Thursday is strongly favored to win Fannin county honors this year. They won district honors here in 1931 and were runners-up in 1930. Incidentally, the 1932 quint includes all the 1931 men.

Gober administered a severe drubbing to the Wildcats recently and the local boys are still smarting. They will do their best to avenge themselves Thursday. The first game will be called at 7 o'clock.

A red traffic light at the intersection of Lamar avenue and Twenty-third street was the cue for the arrest of a Clarksville resident and partial destruction of one gallon of whisky about 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Notified by Red River county officials to arrest the driver of a described light model touring car, Sheriff W. A. Walters and Jailer Felix Cunningham drove east on Highway No. 5 and waited for their man.

Trailing behind their tentative prisoner, the county officers allowed him to drive as far toward the county jail as was efficacious. With traffic stopped by a red traffic signal at the intersection of Twenty-third street, Jailer Cunningham jumped from the sheriff's automobile and boarded the light touring car.

An ensuing scuffle between Cunningham and the driver gave the female occupant of the car an opportunity to hurl a half gallon jar of whisky to the pavement. The process of dispatching the whisky in the second jar was interrupted by Sheriff Walters and Cunningham. Sufficient evidence remained in the jar.

Local mat fans are all set for a full evening's entertainment at Promoter Doc Gilman's Paris Athletic club Tuesday night when Elmer Guthrie, Salt Lake City neck-twister deluxe, will endeavor to tear down the nice little playhouse which "Gentleman George" Sauer has built up in Paris at the expense of less able grapplers.

Although Sauer has won all his matches in Paris, he is expected to meet his toughest opponent in Guthrie, who has not lost a match in so long many think he has forgotten how to lose. The winner of Tuesday night's final go will meet Juan Humberto, Mexican Adonis here next week. In view of this, both Guthrie and Sauer are expected to extend themselves. Sauer and Humberto have met twice and won one match each and both are anxious to meet in a deciding bout. On the other hand, Humberto is just as eager to meet Guthrie because of Guthrie beating him on what he termed a "fluke."

Prior to the final match, admirers of Sauer will present him with a monogrammed bathrobe. This grappler has established a considerable following in Paris and there is little doubt he will get plenty of encouragement in his bout with the Mormon City matman.

The semi-final go is due to be a fast match. Stanley West, Osage Indian, and Teddy Waters, though both have worked throughout this section, have never met. They are said to be of practically equal ability. Teddy Waters appeared at the Lamar District Fair, but West is making his initial bow to local fans.

In addition to the stellar mat card, Promoter Gilman is offering a three round boxing bout between Battling Baker and Lefty Campbell. As both these local lads have pugilistic aspirations, the match is expected to be fast and furious.

An added attraction offered by the promoter is an acrobatic act, put on by a father and his three-year-old son.

The evening's entertainment begins promptly at 8:15 o'clock, though the final event is not likely to begin before 10 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at C. P. Johnson's and the Palace Drug Store.

ports were received with expressions of surprise and disappointment in foreign office circles here today.

The foreign office spokesman declared the scheme did not mean the partition of China, as some Washington quarters had interpreted it. He also denied that it meant interference with China's administrative integrity, since Chinese administrative organs would function, he said, inside the demilitarized area.

Spokesman Scores Critics
"Those who disapprove of Japan's proposals should attempt to offer something better," the spokesman said.

"If China is permitted to continue to drift, a partition is much more likely than if the powers step in with positive measures."

Final settlement of Japan's dispute with China was impossible, he emphasized, unless cessation of the anti-Japanese movements and boycott is guaranteed. He said a continuation of the conditions of recent months would only require Japan to send troops to China from time to time.

"If the world is going into hysteria every time Japan takes military action in China proper, it is time some permanent remedy is evolved," the spokesman said.

Negro Affray Follows Game

The aftermath of a game about 8:30 o'clock Monday night sent one negro to the county hospital with two deep razor wounds in his back and precipitated a second negro's flight to outlying regions.

The wounded negro was found at the intersection of South Twenty-third and Sherman streets by City Patrolmen John Willburn and Grover Taylor. The negro had two gashes in his back below his left shoulder. Patrolmen rushed him to the county hospital.

The misunderstanding was said to have occurred in an alley east of Twenty-third street. Two hours after the affray the father of the victorious negro brought his son to the county jail and lodged him there for the night.

THE GASOLINE RACKETEER IS ROBBING YOU As Well As Your State

An enormous new racket has grown up in the past few years—the bootlegging of gasoline to escape payment of the state tax. Now an alarming amount of gasoline is being sold without payment of lawful tax.

Most motorists who buy bootleg gasoline buy it unknowingly. But know it or not, they are being robbed by the gasoline racketeers every time they buy from them!

The gasoline tax you pay belongs to you, and you should get it back from your state in the form of good roads. When you buy bootleg gasoline, you pay all or a part of the tax, too—but the racketeer pockets the money. You never get it back! And remember—if your state received all the money paid as a gasoline tax, it could well afford to lower the gasoline tax!

Knowing this, you naturally don't want to buy any bootleg gasoline. To be sure the money you pay as tax goes to your state, buy only gasolines sold under dependable, familiar brand names, backed up by reliable companies who make sure the state gets the tax. By sticking to familiar, reliable brands, you'll help banish racketeers.

CONOCO Gasoline is a branded gasoline you can buy with safety at the sign of the CONOCO Red Triangle.

CHAPTER 33

There was little opportunity for conversation, while the three drove to Springfield. Gene had his arm around Vivian's shoulders all the way. She sat between the two men. Their thoughts raced ahead with the motor, each of them wondering what was going to happen when they arrived in Springfield. Mystery was in the air.

As they neared the city, Gene explained, "We'll leave Vivian at the hotel while I run down to the airport with you for a minute. As soon as you can tell me how long it will take you to tune her up I'll take a cab back to town. Maybe we can see a show while I wait for you."

He went with her into the hotel foyer and found an unoccupied divan where she could wait, taking her suitcase in also. "Just in case it develops that we have to stay here all night," he told her guardedly. "That depends upon the plane, but I hope we can get away soon. Wait right here, and I'll be back just as quickly as I can. You're a brave kid V," he whispered, pressing her hand in his to reassure her.

She smiled wanly and watched him cross to the entrance. Then she sat down and looked around her. This affair was really most romantic, she reminded herself, further impressed by her surroundings which seemed quite handsome to her. The lobby of city hotels were a novelty to Vivian, therefore impressive.

As her glance wandered over the early evening assembly of lounging guests and public loungers, it was met and held by a pair of keen, gray eyes, that were part of a distinguished looking face. Vivian felt the color rising in her own face, and looked away hastily. To cover her confusion she picked up a newspaper which someone had left on the divan, and apparently became much interested in its contents. But she felt that the stranger continued to watch her.

"Idiot, of course," she told herself. "Don't look at him. He only wants to flirt with you. He's probably some bored husband on a long journey from home and looking for diversion. You could be that as well as anything else."

Try as she would to avoid his eyes, she could not focus them on the newspaper. It seems that eyes have a queer way of wanting to look in the direction which their owner wished to evade, as Vivian became aware. Presently, she ventured a surreptitious glance, hoping that the man had lost interest, but he was still staring at her quite rudely. She flushed again with resentment, and turned abruptly so that he could not see her face directly.

The moments dragged by, Vivian looked at her watch, and checked it by the large clock over the clerk's desk. She had been there a half hour, and Gene should be back soon, now. Her foot swung impatiently. She had not dared to let herself think this thing through. The die was cast, and she would follow it through to the end. In the first place, the whole affair was a puzzling mystery to her, but she would trust Gene utterly. He loved her, and he had promised to take care of her. To be with him, anywhere, anyhow, was all the happiness she asked.

She was annoyed to discover that the man who had been watching her had risen and crossed the room strolling casually near her. The thought flashed through her mind that she was a young girl eloping with a man whom she scarcely knew, and that perhaps this was someone already on her trail as an interceptor of her plans. "Impossible," she told herself. "No one can know that you are eloping. No one knows that you are here except Gene and Ted and Mummy. She thinks you are safe with Ted, and Ted trusts you to Gene. Forget it and give him a stony eye."

In her confusion and resentment she moved abruptly, and part of the newspaper which she had been trying to read, slid from her lap onto the floor, which was the most disastrous thing that could have happened under the circumstances, she realized. Instantly, the man whose glances she had resented, stooped and picked up the paper and presented it to her with a low courtesy, remarking, "Allow me."

"Thank you," Vivian murmured.

accepting the paper and refusing to meet his eyes.

He sat down at the other end of the divan, as if they might have just been introduced by a mutual friend, and inquired, "Do you happen to be a stranger here, too?"

Vivian reflected that if she were not in love with Gene, and if she just had been introduced to this man, it might be very interesting. He was quite handsome, and appeared to be important, and he had a very nice voice.

But her own was definitely cool, as she replied, "Not entirely," and dismissed him by turning again to the newspaper.

But he would not be dismissed. "Oh, can't you be a little sociable with me? Your answer implies that you have been here before. I was wondering what there might be in this place for a stranger to do to pass the evening."

"Go to the movies like you can in any town," she replied, slightly more cordial, and smiled.

"Is that what you are here for?" he smiled back.

"Oh, no," and then, impulsively, "I have much more important things to do than that."

He raised his eyebrows. "How interesting. Tell me about it."

"Oh, no, I couldn't," hastily.

He shrugged. "How mysterious you sound."

She flushed guiltily, and retorted to cover her confusion. "Is it always a mystery unless people confide their affairs to every stranger they meet?"

"Oh, no not at all," he denied. "A beautiful young lady engaged in important affairs is always a mystery. May I ask where you came from tonight? I noticed that a young man came in with you and left."

"How rudely inquisitive you are! Have you nothing more important to do than to sit and watch other people and pry into their affairs?"

"Nothing," he smiled blandly.

"Well, that's just too bad, for you," disdainfully.

"Oh, I don't know," he was diffident. "Anything can be boring at times. Don't you think so? Like waiting for someone. You are waiting for your friend to return, aren't you?"

"I am. So you are only wasting your time," Vivian raised her paper and began to read again, with finality.

She had dismissed him she hoped, and was gratified that presently he arose, holding his hat in his hands, and said politely, "Well, goodbye, then. I am sorry we cannot be friends."

"Goodbye," she said shortly, scarcely glancing up from the paper and wishing with relief when he had crossed the lobby and disappeared toward the street. Still, he had been very attractive, she reflected, with a little glow of pride that he had singled her out of the room of lone women to talk to.

It was more than an hour before Gene returned, and Vivian was growing anxious, when she saw him crossing the room toward her. Then, all her apprehensions vanished, and her eyes questioned him eagerly.

"Sorry, dearest to keep you waiting so long. Had to help Stanton some, so we could get away tonight all ready? I have a cab waiting outside to take up to the airport. You might have gone with us first and waited there. But I didn't know what we could plan for."

Her heart fluttered with excitement. Actually, she was going to fly away tonight—now — with Gene. The fact had seemed incredible while she waited in uncertainty at the hotel—but now, they really were on their way to the airport.

Her hands were tingly cold and her lips felt numb when she got into the taxicab with Gene. "But what am I going to tell Ted—and Mummy, dear?"

"Leave Ted to me. And you tell him to tell your mother just what you are doing. That you are flying away to marry me because you love me, and there is no other way. Tell her that you will explain everything in a letter, and wire her as soon as we are married—tomorrow."

It sounded simple and right, flected, with a little glow of pride that he had singled her out of the room of lone women to talk to.

from Gene. She sighed, and laid her head on his shoulder. "You will love me always, Gene?" she implored him for security.

"Of course, always. If not, why should I be taking you away for all ways?" he kissed her.

A tall rather handsome man, who had been standing idly near the hotel entrance, watched the taxicab depart, then turned into the hotel foyer and entered a public telephone booth, and gave a number without consulting the directory.

Some twenty minutes later, the taxicab swung into the airport station, discharged its passengers, and rumbled away.

"Over there is my plane," Gene indicated picking up her bag and leading the way.

Vivian noticed Ted's little car standing in the almost deserted parking space, and experienced a moment of panic. The little car would carry her back to Mitchell, field and home and mummy, if she said the word. But to what else? To loneliness and longing for Gene, she walked on resolutely beside him.

Ted was standing beside the plane where two other men appeared to be talking to him with the casual interest of airport loiterers as Vivian and Gene approached.

"All set?" Gene asked Ted.

"Okay," Ted declared. "Well, you didn't much get much time together," he remarked to Vivian with a tone of brotherly concern. "Maybe he can stay longer next time."

"Vivian is going with me, Stanton, and I'd like a word with you before we leave," he glanced significantly at the two intruders.

"Well, we'd like a word with you first," one of them replied, as both of them made a sudden gesture; and the three found themselves covered with two guns.

"Hand over your gun," one of them commanded Gene, who complied without a word. "You are all under arrest," he announced, revealing a government badge.

Vivian and Ted looked at Gene in silent astonishment, but his face was sullen. Vivian had gone very white, and with a helpless gesture of despair she appealed to the strangers. "If it's about my flying away with Gene, I'll not go, I'll go back home with Ted, if you will release us all!"

"Keep quiet," admonished Gene. "It isn't about your going away with me."

ture; and the three found themselves covered with two guns.

"Hand over your gun," one of them commanded Gene, who complied without a word. "You are all under arrest," he announced, revealing a government badge.

Vivian and Ted looked at Gene in silent astonishment, but his face was sullen. Vivian had gone very white, and with a helpless gesture of despair she appealed to the strangers. "If it's about my flying away with Gene, I'll not go, I'll go back home with Ted, if you will release us all!"

"Keep quiet," admonished Gene. "It isn't about your going away with me."

Coker Warm In Praise of Farm Sales Day

LOCAL MERCHANT SAYS MANY COME FROM DISTANCE

Chairman of Retailer's Division Enthusiastic Over Results of Auctions

Asked Monday as to "prospects for the next monthly Farmers Trades and Sales Day, which will be held Monday, H. C. Coker, chairman of the Retailer's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke whole heartedly and enthusiastically in favor of that event.

"It is now, and has been since the day of its inception, an unqualified success," Mr. Coker said. "It has brought new business to Paris, and has undoubtedly been the direct means of increasing and expanding our trade territory. People come to Paris on Trades Day who would never have come otherwise, and as a result the merchants have been benefitted individually and collectively.

"I am of the firm opinion that it is the most outstanding co-operative proposition the merchants of this city have ever attempted, and I believe Trades Day will continue to grow in popular favor. It has not only brought additional business to our city, but it has helped to broaden our acquaintance with people of other sections, and created a feeling of good will that could never have been accomplished otherwise.

"Weather conditions have never affected the attendance, and the event has been beneficial to not only the merchants of Paris, but to the people who visit our city. Yes, sir, Trades Day is a most decided success."

This event is now nearing its third anniversary, and next Monday is being looked forward to as the most successful of the days.

Markets

Local Cotton.

Receipts Monday 215 bales with prices ranging from 5 to 6.50 cents. Total receipts for the season 42,867 bales.

Dallas Produce.

DALLAS, Feb. 8, (AP)—Poultry and eggs: hens, lb. 10 to 13; young chickens, lb. 10 to 16; turkeys, lb. 8 to 13; guineas, doz. 3.00; geese, lb. 6 to 7; eggs, doz. 11 to 12; packing butter, lb. 7 to 8; ducks, lb. 9 to 10. Paris markets corresponding.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8, (AP)—Trading in cotton was comparatively quiet Monday, but prices held steady within a narrow range as additional near month liquidation and scattered selling were quite readily absorbed by a continued demand from the trade and covering.

The May delivery ranged from 6.77 to 6.81 and closed at 6.79, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 3 to 5 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points. Trade interests were buyers, it was believed, for foreign account, but the market eased off another 2 or 3 points during the early trading with active months showing net declines of some 4 to 6 points which carried the price of October off to 7.17.

Reports from the south indicate that Japanese interests were still buying in the markets there but that business generally was lighter, with first-hand offerings from the interior smaller.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8, (AP)—The cotton market was very quiet Monday and prices eased off on pre-holiday liquidation. The holiday Tuesday also restricted trading. After an irregular opening prices eased off 4 to 6 points on selling in advance of the holiday, but there was a slight improvement at the end on reported Japanese buying. The close was steady, the general market showing net declines for the day of 3 to 6 points. There was a sale of January at 7.37.

The market opened irregular and little changed. Liverpool cables came in 1 to 3 penny points worse than due. Private cables stated that there had been some continental buying and short covering. Manchester cabled that trading was unaffected by partial strike in the Burnley mills and that trading in cloth and yarns was moderate.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8, (AP)—Estimates from Washington that United States bins were overflowing with 75,000,000 bushels more wheat than last year pulled grain values downward today.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-4 to 5-8 under Saturday's finish, corn 1-2 to 7-8 down, oats 1-8 to 3-4 off, and provisions showing 5 to 10 cents drop.

Corn and oats reflected the downward trend of wheat. Shipping demand here for corn was again relatively slack.

Provisions went lower responsive to hog values at a new bottom record for the season.

Closing indemnities, wheat, May 57 1-4 to 3-8, 58 1-2 to 5-8 3/4 July 57 3-8, 58 1-8 to 59; Sept. 59 3-8, 60 3-8.

Corn, May 38 1-8, 37 3-4 to 7-8; July 40 3-8, 40 7-8 to 41; Sept. 41 3-8, bids.

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8, (AP)—Plainly lacking incentive to do otherwise, stocks nosed downward again Monday.

Selling tended to be selective and the market was again dull, but net changes averaged into a loss of nearly a point which put the Associated Press-Standard Statistics Co. composite within half a point of the January low.

Groups most affected by the dominant drift were the rails, tobaccos, motors, farm implements and coppers. Utilities, with the exception of People's Gas, and also the steel division acquitted themselves reasonably well.

What trade news there was had bearish implications for an unenthusiastic market and with some evidence of liquidation noted in certain prominent stocks the resistance of prices generally proved none too stalwart. The smaller turnover, amounting to 1,148,524 shares, was the most encouraging feature of the session to traders who hoped that a stronger technical position was working the list toward a rally.

Fort Worth Livestock.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 8, (AP)—Hogs, 1,900; few early truck sales steady to strong to small killers; packer market mostly 5 lower; packers bidding 15 lower for rail butchers; practical truck top 4.30; few head up to 4.40; bulk better grades 180-240 lb. truck hogs 4.20 to 4.30.

Cattle, 2,100, including 600 calves; receipts mostly slaughter steers and yearlings; slaughter steers of value to sell around 3.50 to 4.75; three loads good heavy weight country bought steers at 5.50 to 5.25; three loads good fat yearlings 5.00 to 5.35; other slaughter yearlings of value to sell 5.00 and less; bulls scarce and stocker trade poorly tested; slaughter calves about steady; few heavies 4.00 to 4.50; cull sorts 2.00 to 2.50.

Sheep, 3,700; practically no forenoon sales or bids; packers talking sharply lower.

Stock Averages.

THINKS ARGOTANE IS VERY FINE

Mrs. Cope of Breckenridge Says that It Has Completely Relieved Her Digestive Troubles

"I have been bothered by digestive troubles for about a year but Argotane is entirely relieving my ailments," said Mrs. Charles Cope, wife of a well known farmer who lives on Route 1, Breckenridge, Oklahoma, while talking to an Argotane representative. "I had a bad taste in my mouth every morning when I first got up," continued Mrs. Cope. "I was often inclined to be bilious and had a burning pain in my stomach and throat. I frequently had palpitation of the heart caused by gas on my stomach and had some trouble with constipation."

"I saw in the paper where so many people were finding relief for their troubles through Argotane that I bought a bottle and after taking only two bottles I am more than pleased. I have no more trouble with the burning sensation in my stomach and the bad taste in my mouth is entirely gone. I am not bothered with the gas on my stomach and heart does not palpitate as it did. The constipation is entirely relieved. I think Argotane is fine and I am glad to tell others about it."

Genuine Argotane may be obtained at the Palace Drug Store, in Paris, Texas.—Adv.
